Governor Expected To Attempt To Hold Delegation Together at Convention

AGAINST CHANGE OF RULE

Pomerene Ready To Oppose Abrogation, Shouse Favored as Chairman

BY H H DAUGHERTY
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO June 28—With Governor George White of Ohio here presumably to take a personal hand in the Democratic national convention the Buckeye delegation prepared to carry the fight for retention of the two thirds rule to the convention floor

Ohio delegates also were ready to stand back of Mrs Bernice S Pyke national committee woman in her choice of Jouett Shouse for permanent chairman

While it is not expected any one of the delegates will take the floor to urge selection of Shouse former Senator Atlee Pomerene was ready to make the fight for retention of the two-thirds rule Chairman Henry G Brunner said Pomerene represented Ohio on the rules committee where he opposed the proposition to use the two thirds rule for six ballots and then if no nomination is made to permit the convention to decide whether the nomination shall be by majority.

Against New Plan

Chairman Brunner said the proposed rule was no more acceptable to the Ohio delegation than the original Roosevelt plan to discard the two-thirds rule at the start and make the nomination by majority

Brunner said he expected the Ohio delegation to vote almost solidly for Shouse and in favor of retention of the two-thirds rule

Former Governor James M Cox continued to confer with convention leaders in a secluded retreat He has not visited any of the headquarters of the various candidates and remained away from the convention hall

Governor White departed unex

While considerable damage was done in several other sections, it was offset by the benefit to crops which had been threatened by a spring drouth

For a time the village of New Burlington near the Green-Clinton county line was nearly isolated by swollen streams which inundated several highways Water reached the second stories of several houses in the lowlying southern part of the town

Four feet of water flowed in South Detroit street Xenia after a three inch rainfall

CHICAGO STADIUM, June 28 — Some close friends of Jouett Shouse today conceded that he would be defeated for the permanent chairmanship of the Democratic convention by Senator Walsh of Montana, the Roosevelt choice

CHICAGO STADIUM June 28—Bringing into the open the first of the disputes which have threatened the dominance of Franklin D Roosevelt the Democratic convention was swept by an outpouring of oratory today as it moved on from the opening formalities to grapple with the problems of credentials contests and election of a permanent chairman

Backing Senator Thomas J Walsh of Montana, for the chairmanship and the delegates of Huey Long of Louisiana and Einar Hoidale of Minnesota in their contests for a place among the convention membership the Roosevelt managers sent a succession of speakers to the platform and a numerous group of workers among the delegates to work for the solidarity of the Roosevelt lines.

The opposition fought stubbornly but there was some evidence that the Rooseveltians were gaining ground.

Several wavering southern delegations seemed to be steadying and Missouri pledged to James A Reed for President and counted heretofore for Jouett Shouse for chairman gave a caucus majority to Walsh

At a special meeting the Roosevelt controlled rules committee voted unanimously to recommend the two thirds requirement which the Roosevelt men had at first opposed

The managers for the New York governor conscious that the whole convention situation including the question of the nomination itself has been unsettled by their change of policy on the rules question threw their full strength into the drive to get their lines formed again The ultimate result could not be foretold

"Dark Horses" Discussed

There was much talk of a compromise candidate as the delegates weary from conferences lasting until most of the night assembled slowly in the convention hall Ritchie of Maryland was mentioned as a possible beneficiary of a breakup of present alignments and the name of Newton D Baker was heard in many delegations

Roosevelt men reiterated their confidence they would show a majority on the opening ballot which probably will be reached Thursday or Friday and climb upward repeatedly to the two thirds now accepted as the needed margin

The convention was even slower than at yesterday's opening session in getting itself together The hour of noon saw only a fraction of the delegates in their places and the galleries almost empty Not a single convention official had appeared on the platform

Too Tame

(Will Rogers Special)

CHICAGO June 28—No convention yesterday the Democrats met talked agreed and adjourned So the day was a total loss The convention officially opens today

It wasn't even a rehearsal yesterday nobody fought nobody even split the party

Well if you ever saw a disgusted bunch of people leaving a hall it was all of us yesterday Here people had traveled hundreds of miles, joined delegations some come as spectators and paid fancy prices to see what" To see 1 100 delegates sit there and act like a lot of Republicans

Why two more sessions like the one yesterday and you will have no more people listening to you over the radio than the Republicans did So Democrats fight fight and don't put on another synthetic thing like that yesterday

Yours,

Will Rogers

WET REVOLT FORGES AHEAD

Even Leaders Surprised as Delegations Flock To Back Repeal Move.

BY FRANCIS M STEPHENSON

A wet revolt of proportions surprising even its organizers was moving on the Democratic convention today demanding repeal of the eighteenth amendment and immediate modification of the Volstead act

This platform was proposed by Alfred E Smith and the drive was launched by Senator Walsh of Massachusetts After a conference of the wet forces Senator Walsh conceded to his own astonishment in announcing that a preliminary estimate showed 30 states and territories behind the proposal with a total vote of 666

The text of the prohibition repeal plank agreed to by the wet leaders was announced today by Senator Walsh as follows

We favor the repeal of the eighteenth amendment

We demand that the congress immediately propose such repeal to truly representative conventions in the states called to act solely on that proposal

We urge that the Democratic party cooperate in the enactment of measures by the several states as will actually promote temperance effectively prevent the return of the saloon and bring the liquor traffic into the open under complete supervision and control by the states

We demand that the federal government effectively exercise its power to protect states against importation of intoxicating liquors in violation of their laws

Pending repeal we favor immediate modification of the Volstead act to legalize the manufacture and sale of beer and other beverages of such alcoholic content as is permissible under the constitution and to provide therefrom a proper and needed revenue

Senator Walsh said that 30 mem-

Congressional Conferees Compromise To Meet Wishes of President.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON June 28—Congressional conferees on the unemployment relief bill agreed today on a $300 000 000 emergency aid fund to be administered partially by the President on the basis of need

The conferees determined upon the $300 000 000 figure provided in the senate bill but compromised on the distribution of it to meet President Hoover's wishes for an allocation on the basis of distress rather than entirely on population.

Under the compromise plan, the $300 000 000 fund will be created by adding to the borrowing power of the Reconstruction corporation.

Of this amount [illegible] will be allocated to the states on the basis of population and [illegible] will be distributed by the President as he sees fit.

Laurels Threatened

Maybe Bobby wasn't much a tough golfer after all

Speaking of course of the supposedly one and only Bobby Jones the Atlanta links wizard who only a couple of seasons ago was rolling up a record in American and British competition that had never up to that time been even dreamed of much less accomplished The experts said Jones form would never be equalled much less surpassed It just wasn't being done by human hands

Those same experts are now wondering if they might not have made a mistake That is since Gene Sarazen the stocky little Italian professional has captured both the American and British open tournaments and in both of them beaten the lowest score ever made by Jones in either of them

Of course Sarazen will never equal Jones record of having won a grand slam of four major tournaments in a single season Sarazen is a pro and thus ineligible for the American and British Amateur meets But even though Sarazen doesn't compete in either there is plenty of reason to believe he is shooting just as good golf now as supposedly incomparable Bobby Jones shot when he was burning up the fairways

Baseball Coming Back

Only a few short seasons ago the major league baseball magnates were bemoaning the fact that baseball among the kids of the land of the free and the home of the brave was persona non grata The youngsters seem to have forgotten there is such a thing as the national pastime the moguls sobbed as they viewed with alarm the steadily decreasing number of aspirants for big league berths

However the big league heads didn't sit idly by and twiddle their thumbs in the hope the game would suddenly regain its former popularity and send another wealth of material to the big time They were up and doing and the result is obvious

American Legion junior leagues and numerous other circuits of like nature were formed under the indirect guidance and backing of the majors The result has been gratifying Not in many years has there been so many kid baseball games Everyone that is big enough to swing a bat or throw a ball is out in the alley or behind the barn learning the game There has been too little time elapsed for the big leagues to benefit yet but it won't be long before they will begin to realize on their investments

Hasn't "Taken" Here

Marion as yet doesn't seem to have shared in the sudden revival of interest There was one Legion junior team here a good one too but it lasted only one season Since it dropped out of competition there has been little doing in the way of the baseball A few scattered attempts have been made to launch leagues of both semi pro and amateur status but most of them have proven a distinct flop The players were apparently willing to try their best but the backing and support of the public was among those things not present

The latest attempt to get the game going here is seen in the Heart of Ohio league formed this season This league with eight teams competing is apparently going better than any of the rest but until the end of the season its actual success will not be known The championship will be decided all right but it takes some cold hard currency to operate any circuit be it pro or amateur If that is not forthcoming the circuit will not have a very long existence However the outlook is hopeful Maybe we will yet have baseball back in a prominent place here But not likely for some time to come

Athletic Directors Seek Way To Check Dwindling Gate Receipts.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK June 28—Football and radio have come to the parting of the ways as far as the Eastern Intercollegiate Athletic association is concerned

Faced with the prospect of dwindling receipts this group of 12 eastern colleges and universities voted to prohibit broadcasting of all football games played next season

"We must take advantage of every opportunity to increase financial receipts of football games" said Major Philip B Fleming graduate manager of athletics at West Point and president of the organization declared in announcing the decision

The association comprises a dozen of the largest schools in the east including Harvard Yale Princeton Pennsylvania Brown Pittsburgh Navy Army Columbia Syracuse Dartmouth and Penn State

Indications that other sections colleges may follow the association's footsteps came from Chicago where Major John L Griffith Western conference athletic commission said Big Ten athletic directors were unanimously in favor of banning football broadcasts

AMERICANS MAY YET MEET FOR NET TITLE

Helen Jacobs, Helen Wills Moody Loom as Tennis Finalists.

By The Associated Press

WIMBLEDON Eng June 28—There still is at least an even chance that the British women's tennis singles championship final will be an all American affair

California's two Helens—Mrs Helen Wills Moody and Helen Jacobs—today had reached the semi finals in opposite halves of the draw along with Mary Heeley little Irish player and Mme Rene Mathieu of France

If Miss Jacobs can upset Mme Mathieu in her next match and Mrs Moody wins as expected over Miss Heeley the two Americans will fight it out for the title

Attention shifted today to men's singles with quarter final pairings pitting Ellsworth Vines against Enrique Maier of Spain Sidney Wood against Jiroh Satoh Frank Shields against Henry W (Bunny) Austin and Fred Perry England against Jack Crawford Australia

MICHIGAN, COLGATE GOLFERS ARE TIED

By The Associated Press

CASCADES CLUB HOT SPRINGS Va June 28—Colgate's steady shot maker Henry Hank Kowal and John Fischer Michigan ace were co-favorites today to win medal honors as they faced the second qualifying round of the national Intercollegiate golf championship

Both shot 72 one over par in the opening eighteen holes of the qualifying assignment yesterday

Two Yale golfers Sidney Noyes and J F Parker were two strokes back with 74s while three others—Richard Kimbrough of Harvard John Howard of Michigan and D Gamble of Yale have 75s

Team honors will be decided today with Yale last year's winner well ahead through the opening round Michigan and Ohio State however are close behind

MAT FANS STILL IN DAZE AFTER BATTLE OF ASHBY, VANGLER

2,500 on Hand as Toe Twisters Stage Wild and Rough Melee.

Wrestling fans are still rather dazed as a result of last night's tangle between Sammy Vangler and Spike Ashby in the main go of a mat program at the Steam Shovel gym The indoor card was witnessed by 2 500 fans

The contest between these two rough wrestlers offered plenty in the way of excitement and Ashby won after Vangler was disqualified for fouling in the third fall

The finish was one of the most exciting ever seen here Ashby was out as a result of a low blow and the referee was practically out as a result of a left to the jaw In fact Vangler was the only one in the ring knowing what it was all about and able to do something about it

When the referee recovered sufficiently to part the two men he gave Ashby the fall and then took a hefty sock at Vangler's face and connected Fans roared and promised to join the assault on Vangler Members of the police force intervened however and Vangler was safely conducted to the dressing room

Ashby won the first fall in 35 minutes Vangler was dazed from a series of punches to the head and when he attempted to climb through the ropes he lost his balance and fell to the floor He was counted out An elbow to the jaw gave Vangler the second fall in five minutes The last fall in seven minutes

Jimmy Shaven and Ray Dixon wrestled to a draw in a fast preliminary match John Esko won over Martin Zikoff in straight falls in a slow semi final

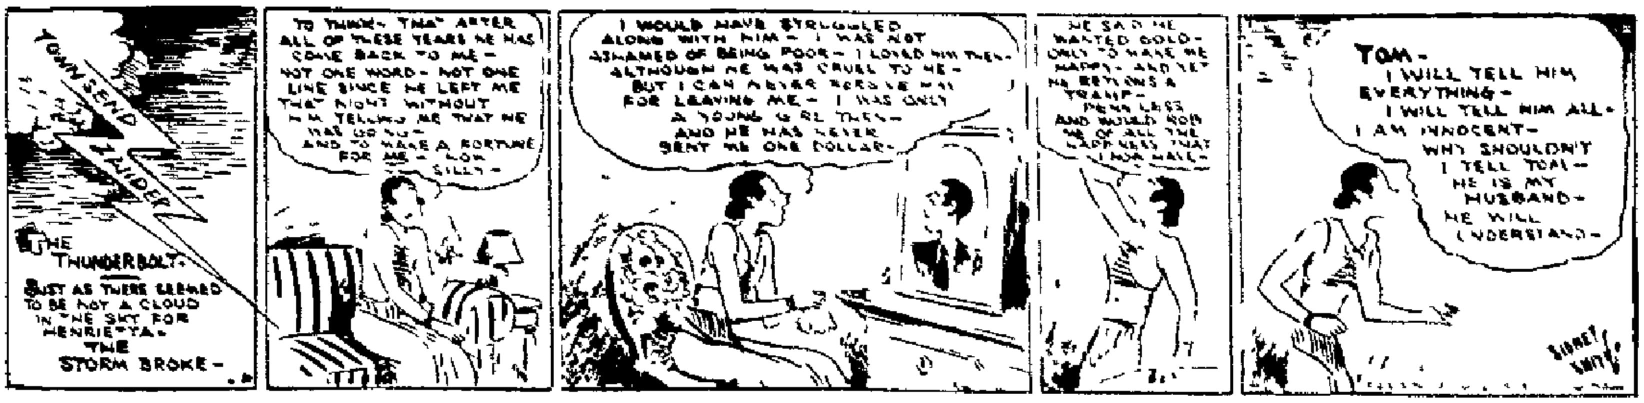
THE GUMPS

BY SIDNEY SMITH



TOWNSEND ZANDER
THE THUNDERBOLT— JUST AS THERE SEEMED TO BE NOT A CLOUD IN THE SKY FOR HENRIETTA— THE STORM BROKE—
TO THINK— THAT AFTER ALL OF THESE YEARS HE HAS COME BACK TO ME — NOT ONE WORD— NOT ONE LINE SINCE HE LEFT ME THAT NIGHT WITHOUT HIM TELLING ME THAT HE WAS GOING— AND TO MAKE A FORTUNE FOR ME— HOW SILLY—
I WOULD HAVE STRUGGLED ALONG WITH HIM— I WAS NOT ASHAMED OF BEING POOR— I LOVED HIM THEN— ALTHOUGH HE WAS CRUEL TO ME— BUT I CAN NEVER FORGIVE HIM FOR LEAVING ME— I WAS ONLY A YOUNG GIRL THEN— AND HE HAS NEVER SENT ME ONE DOLLAR—
HE SAID HE WANTED GOLD— ONLY TO MAKE ME HAPPY— AND YET HE RETURNS A TRAMP— PENNILESS AND WOULD ROB ME OF ALL THE HAPPINESS THAT I NOW HAVE—
TOM— I WILL TELL HIM EVERYTHING— I WILL TELL HIM ALL— I AM INNOCENT— WHY SHOULDN'T I TELL TOM— HE IS MY HUSBAND— HE WILL UNDERSTAND—

LOOK

—tonight. See if your "hoarded dollars" are still in the "mattress" or "ginger jar"?

Is your hidden gold putting silver in your hair?

It was not intended that money should be cellophaned.

If just a few thousands of people with a few dollars would buy a Rebuilt Used Car for from $25 to $100 down, it would give a worker a job, put a smile on a dealer's face, coal in the basement, bacon in the basket, frosting on the cake and all would be jake.

Root out those HOARDED DOLLARS.

They can do DOUBLE DUTY NOW. Used Car prices are lowest in FIFTEEN YEARS.

TOCK MARKET S IRREGULAR

[illegible]ctuate Uncertainly, D[illegible]g Lower After Midday.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 28—A mixture [illegible] and bad news for [illegible] kept the share market [illegible] uncertainly today [illegible] decided downward [illegible] after midday.

[illegible] firmed momentarily at [illegible] and pushed up rather [illegible]ward midday, as shorts [illegible] by payment of the [illegible] dividend of $1.50 by Allied [illegible] weakness of Coca [illegible] by Santa Fe, soon [illegible] off again.

[illegible] dropped 3 points, and [illegible] slumped more than 2 to [illegible] since the 1890's, as no [illegible] taken on the dividend. [illegible] Telephone and Union [illegible] a point or so, and [illegible] common and preferred, [illegible] to new bottom prices, [illegible] temporary gains of [illegible] the morning. Gains of [illegible] in Allied Chemical, and [illegible] in Auburn, were large[illegible] as well as a 2-point upturn [illegible] Can.

[illegible] had an interval [illegible] in the early trading. [illegible] distinctly adverse May [illegible] reports. The report of [illegible] loadings, appeared later [illegible] morning, showed a gain of [illegible] cars for the week ended [illegible] over the previous week, [illegible] may have been partly due [illegible] of activity in antici[illegible] of the new excise taxes.

[illegible] & Western's cut to $2 [illegible] in its quarterly payment [illegible] unexpected, although its [illegible] have held up relatively [illegible].

The break in Coca Cola went un[illegible] for although profes[illegible] have sometimes sold the [illegible] on agitation for legalization [illegible] on the theory that it [illegible] be hurt by such competition, [illegible] the wet moves at the Demo[illegible] convention may have in[illegible] more of that sort of selling.

A constructive development, [illegible] may have been a factor in [illegible] early upturn, was the an[illegible] that the Central Re[illegible] bank of Chicago had been [illegible] with sufficient cash to [illegible] off every depositor, should the [illegible] wish it. Bankers pointed [illegible] this as a striking example of [illegible] solidarity.

WHEAT PRICES TEND HIGHER

Strength of Liverpool Quotations and Lack of Stock Aid Market.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 28—Grain prices tended upward early today, influenced by relative strength of wheat quotations at Liverpool and by reports that stocks of wheat there were insufficient. Improvement of financial conditions in Chicago was also a bullish factor. Opening unchanged to ⅜ higher, wheat afterward advanced all around.

Corn, which also started unchanged to ⅜ up, held near the initial limits.

Abatement of nervousness among wheat traders was apparent, and during much of the time there was no selling pressure of consequence. The fact that weather developments were more favorable for harvest operations southwest acted, however, as a check on price upturns. Scattered liquidating sales by holders of July contracts were readily absorbed by spreaders who in turn sold the distant month.

Bulls in wheat contended that unless the spring crop came through unusually well, the outlook for only a small domestic primary movement of wheat in comparison with 1930 and 1931, and for a correspondingly restricted increase of the United States visible supply, domestic primary receipts in 1930 during July, August and September were 244,949,000 bushels, and the visible supply during that time increased 98,000,000 bushels. In 1931 primary receipts were 205,221,000 bushels and the visible increase 44,000,000 bushels. Arrivals of wheat at the five principal domestic markets today were hardly more than half of the total a year ago.

Corn and oats were steadied by wheat price upturns. Provisions reflected firmness of hog values.

STOP SIGNS PLACED ALONG TWO STREETS

Columbia To Become Through Street as Result of Action of City Council.

The city service department today was placing stop signs at all cross streets, except those governed by traffic lights, on Bellefontaine avenue from Prospect street to the west corporation line and on Columbia street from Prospect street to Davids street.

An ordinance passed by city council last month designating these streets as through streets went into effect today.

The change was made upon recommendation of Safety Director Emery Murphy and Police Chief W. E. Marks who expressed the belief that the change would relieve some of the traffic on Center street, the average motorist avoiding these streets, especially Columbia, because of the numerous stop streets.

The law firm of Jacoby & Jacoby represented Mrs. King and Frank King; C. C. Fisher was counsel for the Marion County bank, which contested the claims, and the law firm of Guthery, Stretitz & Guthery represented the National City Bank & Trust Co., also opposing the claims.

Seventy five thousand persons from every part of the world have visited the Harding home and museum at 380 Mt Vernon avenue since it was opened to the public Feb 22 1926 according to J Fred Dombaugh manager

This interesting collection of possessions of the late President and Mrs Harding containing approximately 4 000 pieces, is one of this city's most interesting spots to tourists

The home possessing an interesting historical background is filled with some of its original furniture gifts presented to the President and Mrs Harding while they were in the White House trinkets from every part of the world and dozens of photographs paintings and works of art

Mr and Mrs Harding planned their home and built it before they were married The ceremony was performed at the foot of the stair way July 8 1891 Rev Richard Wallace former pastor of Epworth M E church who performed the wedding service is now living in Toledo

Two weeks before the wedding while friends of the bride and bridegroom were helping them put the finishing touches on the interior of the house M A Turney a local jeweler gave Mr and Mrs Harding a clock which was hung on the wall above the stair landing back of the spot where Mr and Mrs Harding were married The clock still hangs in its original place and is in use as a timepiece

Recall Incident

Friends who attended the weddings recall that the ceremony was scheduled for 8 p m but took place a few minutes before that time at request of Mrs Harding in view of the superstition that an exchange of wedding vows while the minute hand of a clock was moving downward invited bad luck

ENGLAND ACTS TO AID PARLEY

MacDonald Tells France, Germany To Bury Hatchet and Prevent Failure.

By The Associated Press

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, June 28—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald called in the French and Germans today and told them that if the reparations conference is to get anywhere they will have to bury the hatchet.

He was making a determined effort to prevent the conference from breaking up. Such a danger was threatened when Chancellor Von Papen of Germany told Premier Herriot of France his country insisted upon cancellation of reparations.

That brought the two right back where they started, for the French premier cannot retreat from the stand that France will not permit cancellation until she is assured of adequate compensation for the money she would lose if the German payments stopped.

Today's meeting brought the two premiers and their finance ministers to Mr. MacDonald's headquarters. A successful compromise seemed to depend upon the discovery of a formula which would satisfy both French and German opinion at home.

Long conferences between the French and Germans last night failed to better the situation which has grown out of Germany's flat demand that reparations be cancelled and France's insistence that some payments must be made.

The British and Italian delegations were sticking to the guns, however, determined the conference must not end in failure.

Count Lutz Von Krosigk, German finance minister, announced a proposal for a common cash box into which Germany would pay sums when she is financially able. This plan was offered as a substitute for the eventual resumption of reparations payments desired by France, but Premier Herriot received the proposal with reservations.

Afterwards Premier Herriot is understood to have declared the German scheme was inadmissible and that he could not consent to the cancellation of reparations without adequate compensation.

'PAST LIFE' OF NURSE ATTACKED AT TRIAL

Hutton Defense Counsel Charges Myrtle St. Pierre Had Other Romances.

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Calif., June 28—The past life of Myrtle Joan St. Pierre was the object of an attack by defense counsel today in her suit for $200,000 for alleged breach of promise against David Hutton, choir singer and husband of Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist.

Defense attorneys said Hutton probably would take the witness stand. His appearance will follow the testimony of witnesses, who, Hutton's attorneys said, will reveal that the 30-year-old, twice married, attractive nurse entertained men at her home prior to and subsequent to her alleged romance with the baritone.

Miss St. Pierre in cross examination of her story of alleged betrayal by Hutton prior to his marriage to the evangelist denied having told a woman friend Hutton was "a pudding head and a mamma's boy" and that she had "no use for him."

While her husband was having his day in court the evangelist also was having her legal difficulties. Superior Judge Arthur Crum yesterday decided Mrs. Hutton must pay $10,000 to Harvey H. Gates, scenario writer, for the scenario of a film play which she planned and which never was made.

TOLEDO FIRE DAMAGE PLACED AT $300,000

Five Injured, None Seriously, as Blaze Sweeps Downtown Structure.

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., June 28.—Causing damage estimated at $300,000, fire destroyed a three-story brick building in the downtown business section here early today. Five persons were injured, none seriously. An explosion preceded the blaze.

The structure, located on Superior street near Madison avenue, was occupied by the Western Auto Supply Co. and the Wood Colburn Co., manufacturers of caps and gloves. Both concerns' stocks of merchandise were lost.

The injured, who were two firemen, a spectator and two employes of the Northwestern Ohio Gas company, were treated for cuts and bruises.

Fire department officials were not immediately able to ascertain the cause of the fire or to account for the explosion.

ENGLAND AGAINST HOOVER PROPOSAL

By The Associated Press

LONDON, June 28—The British cabinet was understood today to have turned down more or less diplomatic thumbs on President Hoover's disarmament proposals.

After a discussion of the Hoover plan last night the ministers were reported to have agreed the plan did not provide for enough naval vessels for the needs of the empire.

The cabinet was reported to have been of the opinion that a plan which permitted fewer larger ships and more small ones would save just as much money and suit Britain better.

CONVENTION VET

Conventions may be exciting events to the younger generation of politicians, but to Norman E. Mack (above) they are just quadrennial reunions of old friends. Mack has been a Democratic national committeeman from New York for the last 32 years. He is shown on his arrival at Chicago for the convention.

pectedly and without explanation for the convention. It was believed, however, his purpose was to help hold the Buckeye delegation intact.

Ohio's 52 convention votes were pledged to White with the understanding they would stay with him as long as it appeared he had a chance of winning.

White had been requested to release the delegates by former State Chairman W. W. Durbin of Kenton, who disclosed himself friendly to the presidential aspirations of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

White Non-Committal

Governor White would not comment on his chances for the nomination immediately upon his arrival. He was met at the railroad station by Harry N. Newman of New York and H. S. Atkinson of Columbus, both close personal friends. He said he probably will make his headquarters with the Ohio delegation at the Palmer House and insisted that he may not stay longer than a day or two.

Asked directly why he had come to the convention after deciding to stay away, the Ohio governor said:

"When an old war horse smells powder it is hard to restrain him."

White has attended every national convention for many years and said he did not want to break his record.

White said he is absolutely opposed to abrogation of the two-thirds rule.

SUDDEN SUPPORT IS GIVEN WET REVOLT

Even Leaders Surprised as Delegations Flock To Back Repeal Move.

bers of the resolutions committee approved this plank.

The 566 votes claimed by Walsh is within a dozen of the majority necessary for adoption of a platform plank expressing the party in favor of repeal. However the total is a hurried estimate and presidentially minded delegates have not been polled.

Southern and western forces were rallying behind the repeal submission plank which the resolutions committee is preparing to report out tonight. It is the plank advanced by the Roosevelt leaders.

Prohibition and farm relief planks remained for the resolutions subcommittee to be whipped into form today before the 1932 Democratic platform goes before the whole committee tonight.

Favors State Vote

The repeal submission plank has the votes in the resolutions committee by a substantial margin. It is a plank asking that congress submit an amendment to state conventions for repeal or retention. It does not commit the party to repeal.

Senator Dill of Washington, a member of the committee, advanced a terse concise compromise last night in 23 words. It read: "We favor proposing repeal of the Eighteenth amendment to conventions called in the states for the sole purpose of acting upon that proposal."

The wet movement had taken the prohibition camp somewhat by surprise and a sharp counter move was in prospect. The prohibitionists and the veteran party leaders are convinced that it is unwise to seek to pledge the party for repeal.

"ALABAMA CASTS 24"

Voice Made Famous in N. Y. To Be Heard Again.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 28.—The voice that in 1924 led off each Democratic convention roll call with "Alabama casts 24 votes for Underwood" is just the same this year, but the tune is changed to "24 votes for Roosevelt."

The owner of the voice, former Governor W. W. Brandon of Alabama, has the lead-off place on roll calls. Brandon predicts a nomination in less than six ballots and he has a reason.

"I started out in New York in 1924 in a $25-a-day suite. Before that convention ended I was eating hot dogs. And boys, I don't like hot dogs."

LINDBERGH ON STAND IN TRIAL OF CURTIS

Prisoner Listens Intently as Colonel Relates Story of Sea Trips

effort to contact the kidnapers, Lindbergh continued. Curtis told him of meeting "Hilda," one of the alleged kidnaping band, in a New York railroad station.

"I feel [illegible] much for my [illegible] the people I'm dealing with," Col. Lindbergh quoted Curtis as telling him on that occasion.

Col. Lindbergh said that on numerous occasions when Curtis told him of contacts with the kidnapers and instructions they gave him, Lt. Edmund Bruce of Elmira, N. Y., and Lieut. George Richards, U. S. N., were present.

Bruce is an old friend of Curtis who drove him about on his repeated contact trips. Richards is a navy flier who piloted Curtis on many of his journeys. Both are expected to be called as state witnesses.

Voices Faith in Servants

In telling of Curtis' remarks about a member of the Lindbergh household being implicated in the kidnaping, Col. Lindbergh expressed entire faith in his servants.

"We have only three servants and have absolute faith in them," he testified.

The third member of the Lindbergh household staff is Wheatley, husband of the housekeeper. He is the butler.

Prosecutor Anthony Hauck asked Lindbergh what explanation Curtis gave when efforts to make contact with the kidnapers repeatedly failed.

"He said Hilda explained her husband was in a difficult position but would try to make contact," Lindbergh replied. "Mr. Curtis said he told her—using his words—'If they were gin pigging me to say so and get out.'"

At last Col. Lindbergh came to the point in his story where he had to tell of the discovery of the baby's death. He had himself well in hand and spoke in a steady voice.

Col. Lindbergh said that when the baby was found dead Curtis told him he would do everything possible to bring the kidnapers to justice.

On May 13, he said, Curtis repeated substantially all his story of negotiations with the kidnapers. The 13th is the first of five days mentioned in the indictment on which Curtis is alleged to have given false information.

The prosecution completed its direct examination of Col. Lindbergh at 11:05 a. m. and cross examination was immediately begun.

Before being turned over to the defense Col. Lindbergh testified that after the baby's body was found he promised Curtis to do everything he could to give Curtis a chance to back up his story. Then on May 16 Curtis made the confession that all his negotiations had been a hoax, a confession he has since repudiated.

Lloyd Fisher conducted the cross examination of Col. Lindbergh. He asked if Lindbergh required the presence of state police on his various trips while he was seeking return of the baby.

"It is not for me to run the state police," Col. Lindbergh replied.

Sought "Earnest Money"

He said Curtis had asked for no money beyond requesting that $25,000 be deposited in a bank as earnest money.

Col. Lindbergh said he was not impressed when Curtis first approached him about his alleged negotiations with the kidnapers.

"I listened to his story and told him I thought he was being misled," he testified, "but we wanted to keep all doors open."

He later became convinced Curtis was in touch with the kidnapers when Curtis told him of having seen in their possession some of the ransom money paid for Lindbergh by Dr. John F. Condon.

"Colonel, did you ever make a complaint against Mr. Curtis?" Fisher asked.

"I signed no complaint," Lindbergh replied.

The airman fixed his blue eyes on his questioner and told unemotionally yesterday of the first stages of the hunt. In a voice that rang out above the growl of a thunderstorm he described how Curtis told him that one of the plotters, "John," wanted to sell the baby to the highest bidder among other gangs of criminals unless $25,000 ransom was quickly forthcoming.

Tells of Cape May Meeting

Lindbergh told how Curtis, after making a trip some miles off the New Jersey coast, met the airman at Cape May.

"What did he have to report?" Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck Jr. asked.

"Curtis said he had been taken to a Gloucester fisherman where he met the entire gang," Lindbergh said. "There were five men in the gang. They were all of Scandinavian descent. He said that John (the person to whom Dr. John F. Condon paid $50,000 ransom) was there and said also that John sent his love to Dr. Condon.

"The gang was split into two groups. One was led by Dynamite and the other by John. John was by far the most desperate individual in the gang. Dynamite was in control. Curtis said he had seen over $3000 of the ransom money and that he had checked the bills against a newspaper list * * *

"He claimed that John wanted to sell the baby to the group making the highest bid but they were afraid to carry out negotiations with any other gang. Dynamite agreed to return the baby to me."

Lindbergh did not look toward Curtis, who sat perspiring in the sweltering court room.

tive was Senator Huey Long whose Louisiana delegation had won a rough and tumble battle in the credentials committee but still faced a challenge on the floor.

Hatless and in white the Kingfish started a "round" of handshaking in various delegations.

The national chairman, John J. Raskob, arrived a few minutes later and was surrounded by delegates who wanted to whisper in his ear.

Senator Robert J. Bulkley of Ohio, mentioned as a possibility for either place on the ticket, appeared in a linen suit and steered his way to the Ohio section through the gathering crowds in the aisles.

Shouse, who is the party's executive chairman, was very busy among the platform early comers when Senator Walsh, his opponent for the chairmanship, appeared in the growing throng on the floor. Both looked very tired.

Line Up Forces

Roosevelt men were working harder than beavers to rally their forces and reports from some of the southern caucuses indicated progress.

Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi reported to Raskob that Mississippi would go down the line for Senator Walsh, the Roosevelt candidate. Delegates in the Alabama delegation said they would do the same.

Senator Barkley made his first try for order at two minutes before one. He evidently meant business and the disorderly aisles began to clear up. The floor was packed. Delegates had trouble getting intruders out of their places.

The galleries were nearly filled too.

Just at 1 o'clock the business of the day really got started, but only for an announcement by J. Bruce Kremer of Montana, chairman of the rules committee, that the committee would meet immediately in an adjoining room. It was called together to reconsider its decision of last night indorsing a modified two-thirds rule.

Speakers Chosen

The convention officials worked out an agreement for the chairmanship dispute limiting each side to 30 minutes debate. John W. Davis, the nominee of eight years ago, Ralph T. O'Neil of Topeka, Kansas, and Mrs. Bernice S. Pyke, national committeewoman for Ohio, were chosen to speak for Shouse.

For Walsh the speakers were Senators C. C. Dill of Washington state and James Byrnes of South Carolina.

Drop Proposals for Change

Roosevelt leaders called off all proposals for any change in the two-thirds nominating rule today as the report from the rules committee impended.

A new meeting of the rules committee was ordered by Chairman Kremer after James A. Farley, spokesman for Governor Roosevelt of New York, made a surprise appearance before the committee this morning and announced he favored retention of the two-thirds rule throughout the convention.

The majority of the committee which last night voted for a special rule permitting abrogation of the two-thirds precedent by a majority vote after six ballots withdrew from the committee and went into conference with Farley.

Later Kremer, who is supporting the special rule calling for abandonment of the two-thirds requirement if six ballots fail to nominate, returned to the committee room where the minority members were assembled and announced that a special meeting of the committee would be held on the convention floor later today.

This new meeting will be held, explained Kremer, with a view to getting a report acceptable to the minority.

Leaders of the minority, headed by Daniel F. Cohalen of New York, leader of the minority, hailed the move as a complete surrender.

Favor New Rule for Future.

The anti-Rooseveltians had agreed earlier to take to the convention floor a report calling for adoption of a resolution frowning upon use of the rule at future conventions.

By a 30 to 20 vote the rules committee last night decided to recommend that if after six ballots no candidate is chosen under the tradition-honored requirement of two-thirds majority, a simple majority or more than half shall nominate on any succeeding ballot.

It took three hours to reach this decision, over opposition which made certain that every effort of the favorite son, anti-Roosevelt groups and even of Roosevelt delegations unwilling to abandon the 100-year-old two-thirds rule would be brought to bear to defeat it in the convention.

Roosevelt headquarters immediately became vigorous in disavowing responsibility for the committee action, insisting the governor had dropped his urging of majority rule completely and finally and that therefore "the decision was entirely spontaneous." But it was Roosevelt's friends on the committee who put it through.

So anxious was James A. Farley, the Roosevelt manager, to divorce his camp from the action that he issued two statements of disavowal, one of his own authority and the second late in the night after long distance consultation with the New York governor.

A second history-making departure from precedent was made by the committee in recommending 31 to 18 that the platform draft be not brought up until after the presidential and vice presidential candidates have been named, thus permitting the nominee to advise with the convention before the declaration of principles is adopted. This to meet opposition of uncertain strength.

Atlee Pomerene, former senator from Ohio, supporter of Governor George White for president, and Daniel F. Cohalen, former New York supreme court justice, led the fight against both rules at every step.

Has No Part in 6th Ballot Rule

By The Associated Press

ALBANY, N. Y., June 28—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt said today he had had no part whatever in the adoption by the rules committee of the Democratic national convention in Chicago last night of a resolution that would do away with the two-thirds nomination rule after the sixth ballot.

The governor said he had not yet received word from Chicago of the committee's decision.

"I've only read about it in the newspapers," he said as he arrived at his office in the capitol shortly after 11 o'clock. "I haven't talked to Chicago yet—I imagine they're still sleeping.

"I had absolutely no hand in the formation of that rule," he added. "I thought Jim Farley gave out a statement on that in Chicago last night. The last I heard from Jim he was going to."

No direct reference was made at this morning's press conference to the telegram Roosevelt sent Farley yesterday directing that the fight against the two-thirds rule be dropped.

Governor Roosevelt planned to spend the day in his office attending to state matters. Beside his desk is a radio set over which yesterday he listened to Senator Alben W. Barkley's keynote speech as he dictated the telegram for Farley.

"Might Be Time for Third Party"

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 28—William Randolph Hearst, publisher, in response to a question asked by the Brooklyn Eagle today said that this might be an ideal time to start the Progressive Democratic party.

The question was: "Would you support Roosevelt, Baker or Ritchie if nominated?"

Hearst made the following reply:

"I will support any genuine Democrat, but I will not support any candidate of Wall street and the international bankers nominated to perpetuate the Hoover policies and make the interests of the United States subservient to the interests of foreign countries.

"If the public wants the Hoover policies they should elect Hoover.

"If they do not want Hoover policies they should have an opportunity to protest them even if a new party has to be started to give them that opportunity. This might be an ideal time to start the Progressive Democratic party with leaders who have at this critical time enough intelligence to be progressive, enough courage to be Democratic and enough patriotism to be devotedly American."

MARION GUARDSMEN QUIT STRIKE AREA

Sixteen Members of Co. D Get Order To Withdraw from Trouble Zone.

Sixteen men of Co. D, 166th Infantry of Marion were among the 75 Ohio National guardsmen in the coal strike area of Athens county ordered to quit the area today and Wednesday, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Columbus.

The local unit, in command of Capt. H. I. Taylor, went on duty in the strike area June 10.

The number of guardsmen in the area will be reduced to 250 by an order withdrawing the troops issued by Adjutant General F. D. Henderson after a conference with Lieut. Col. Herman C. Doellinger of Marysville, commanding the guardsmen. It came a few hours after the chief of police of Nelsonville threatened to ask Governor George White to declare martial law unless recurrent disorders at the Lick Run mine are stopped.

FOES OF LONG LOSE BATTLE

Louisiana "Kingfish" Delegations Seated, Opponents Continue Fight

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 28.—The fighting Louisiana's kingfish — Huey Long—sped today straight to the floor of the Democratic convention as Long's delegation and the regulars from Minnesota won before the credentials committee.

With their ire up over losses before the Democratic national committee on Friday and the credentials committee early today, ex-Governor J. Y. Sanders of Louisiana and John E. Regan of Minnesota, heads of the losing delegations, prepared appeals to the convention.

In the case of Minnesota was an outright contest between Franklin Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith, as the Einar Hoidale delegates who were recommended for seating are pledged to Roosevelt and the contestants are for Smith. In the case of Louisiana the issue was not so finely drawn as the Long delegation is pledged.

The credentials committee voted 34 to 17 to seat the Long delegation and 36 to 15 for the Hoidale delegation early today.

In both groups were heated words. Among the Minnesotans fist fights nearly developed.

Trouble started when Andrew Nelson of Duluth, a regular, advised John Regan, leader of the rumpers, to drop their case.

Regan replied with heat and Z. L. Begin, Minneapolis rumper, rushed up to get into the argument. He was called a "liar" by John J. Farrel of St. Paul, chairman of the state central committee.

Begin threw off his coat and poised his fists. Just then Huey Long, fresh from his own battle, stepped in as peace maker and pushed the excited Minnesotans apart.

Each of the Minnesota groups claimed to represent the only real Democratic party in the state and each accused the other of selling out.

JUNIORS TAKE LEAD IN "HELL'S HOUSE" AT OHIO THEATER

Bette Davis, considered by George Arliss as the most promising of the young women who are starting careers in talking pictures, and Pat O'Brien, who is well on his way in his career, play second fiddle to two young actors, Junior Durkin and Junior Coghlan, in "Hell's House," the picture which opened today at the Ohio for three days.

Junior Durkin has the leading role. Junior is the boy who struck a responsive note as the shiftless Huckleberry Finn. The picture was made under the title "Juvenile Court" from a story by Paul Gangelin. Howard Higgin, the director, made a thorough study of his subject through visits to the Los Angeles Juvenile courts.

For a change Pat O'Brien isn't a newspaper reporter in this picture but "Kelly," a small time bootlegger.

About People
McAdoo Is Youthful
Curry Well Cared For
"Candidates' Row"

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

CHICAGO, June 28.—Back beside Lake Michigan, seated in the stadium for the Democratic convention. There, for days to come, Democratic hopes and Democratic hates will roar, as Lake Michigan's waters roar down Niagara's cliff farther east.

Trained reporters will tell you the news.

HERE YOU MAY READ about people.

Other happenings, as far from politics as that northern Tannenbaum from the Southern palm, must be neglected today.

Mr. McAdoo was at the station early to meet the Santa Fe Chief. Ordinarily, when you say to a man of middle age, "You look younger than you did 20 years ago," you mean, really: "What! Are you still alive?"

Not so with Mr. McAdoo. He is thin, active, eager, youthful. He can press his finger against his solar plexus and feel the vertebrae on the other side. Try that on yourself. You will be surprised.

But he cannot wait, he is hurrying to meet "the most charming person in the world." Certainly, you guessed it—Woodrow Wilson's daughter, Mrs. McAdoo.

THERE ARE MANY waiting in many rooms on the Blackstone's seventh floor, where Commissioner Curry, head of Tammany Hall, has his headquarters. The ordinary people sit in two outside rooms. The extraordinary people in a big inside room.

Mr. McCooey of Brooklyn is there. Don't say, "I do not know him," even if you live in Seattle, for that argues that you are unknown. He is talking to Judge Daniel F. Cohalan, who can talk Gaelic, and also common sense on politics.

There is Judge Olvany, once Tammany's head, and there are many others, including the "promising young ones" encouraged by Tammany, as a good horseman encourages young colts.

The young and promising include Mr. Curry's son, who says, "Father would like to see you before you go."

Mr. Curry, whom Tammany obeys as his legions obeyed Lucullus, is in another inside room, the insidest of all.

In peace and comfort, all alone, he is eating his breakfast. You need not ask about his health. The breakfast includes a large sirloin steak, fried potatoes, hot biscuit, coffee, and only fragments remain.

Mr. Curry calls, and Mrs. Curry comes from an adjoining room to see that he is not letting himself be bothered too much. Happy the man, great or small, that possesses a devoted, intelligent wife, to make him live wisely. The thing cannot be done otherwise.

Mr. Curry gives information and asks questions; for instance, "What would Mr. Hearst think of so and so?" The information, unfortunately, is for private consumption, not for broadcasting.

EVERYTHING is uncertainty, and many complications are involved; for instance, to put it bluntly, as politicians do: "What would Governor Roosevelt do about Judge Seabury's charges against Mayor Walker if Mr. Curry, whose fondness of Mayor Walker is like that of a father, should turn his delegates against Roosevelt?"

Those that know Governor Roosevelt believe that no action by the convention would influence his judgment in a matter affecting a man's career. But politicians, skeptical, quote the story of the two gentlemen, one afraid of a barking dog. "Don't you know," asked one, "that a barking dog never bites?" The other replied, "Yes, I know it, and you know it, but does the dog know it?" You have read that story, but not in connection with a presidential nomination.

FOR LIGHT, let us wander on to "candidates' row" in the Congress hotel. Ripley would hardly dare print it, but the candidates are all strung out on one floor, like department stores in State street. And explain this, if you can, without a Chicago psychological chart—the row is on floor B. You are told that it is the eleventh floor. The elevator puts you out and it's the second floor. Yes, the eleventh floor is the second floor in that hotel. That makes the small town man on the third floor live in room 1209, something to write home.

IN A LONG ALLEY, walls covered with placards, are the headquarters of many that sit and wait, knowing the uncertainties of the lightning's stroke. You see Senator Reed's headquarters, many waiting for that hard fighter who has served his state and the nation so well. He is in a conference of delegates.

Names and signs, signs and names, but a strong current draws you, reminding you of that story about the maelstrom that would pull down a ship.

Carried by the crowd you reach the sign "Smith" and look at three rooms jammed, with at least as many women as men. Mayor Hague of Jersey City is going in, and you pass through the hole that he makes in the crowd, as the Cromagnon or Neanderthal person followed in the wake of the mammoth.

Through one room packed, through another room packed, into a third room, not packed, through a door beside which Mrs. Smith, wife of the former governor, is sitting with Mrs. Mooney. Beyond the door sits former Governor Smith, at a desk, his faithful cigar not far away.

He is out for himself, as he has said, not for anybody else. He does not believe that anybody will break the two-thirds rule. And before the day ends, news, not official, comes that Governor Roosevelt will not try to break it.

Governor Smith is in good spirits. He has been fighting for 40 years, usually winning. This fight will be hard. He knows it. Today he has not a delegate pledged north of the Mason and Dixon line or west of the Mississippi River. Nevertheless, in 1928 he got six million more votes than any Democrat ever got before, and will keep on fighting, not from a distance, but from the convention floor. The school in which he was raised believes in being on the spot.

THE IMPRESSION you get, hearing all sides, is that beating Governor Roosevelt is going to be a hard task, even for these most experienced politicians. Democrats think they can win this time. They know that Governor Roosevelt has many delegates. The band wagon may start any moment. Why delay? Why not climb up?

GOAT DAIRY IS NEW BUSINESS VENTURE

The establishing of a goat dairy, the first in this vicinity, has been announced by Miss Hazel Ault of near Big Island.

The dairy, Miss Ault said yesterday, consists at the present time of eight goats and it is the plan to develop a demand for the milk in the city.

According to Miss Ault, who is a trained nurse and has had several years experience in public health work, the milk is alkaline and is recommended by physicians for certain types of illness and for children, Miss Ault said.

Topic Announced.

"John Bunyan and Baptist" will be the subject of discussion at the mid-week meeting at Central Christian church Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. It is the second of a series of discussion on the general subject of "Men Who Made Churches." Mrs. J. G. Cunningham will be in charge.

Miss Dowd Ends Active Service with Red Cross

Miss Margaret Dowd will leave Marion this week to make plans for her future work following her recent resignation as executive secretary of the Marion County Red Cross Chapter, a position she held for nearly four years.

Miss Dowd has had an active part in the development of Red Cross activities in Marion county during her term as secretary, expanding every branch of its service.

Red Cross service, built around a program of relief in war and disaster, has included many services to veterans, their families, and the teaching of first aid and life saving.

Veterans Given Aid.

Hundreds of veterans have been given assistance in presenting their claims for awards and compensation from the government. The Red Cross, Miss Dowd said, also has been active in helping to solve the problems of families of veterans.

Until the formation of the Family Welfare society, the Red Cross also did much direct civilian relief, helping families in unfortunate circumstances.

The Red Cross nursing service was strengthened and enlarged and placed under trained supervision in 1930, and since that time there has been a trained supervisor directing the activities of the organizations' nurses and the city nurse.

The chapter brought a trained first aid instructor from its national headquarters to Marion last year for a 10-day period of instruction. A large group of men and women from factories, large companies and the fire department were qualified as first aid instructors during this period.

The life saving corps was organized and a complete program worked out for both junior and senior life saving corps during Miss Dowd's term. Many persons have been qualified as life savers and others have been taught to swim and dive properly in this phase of service.

Motor Corps Formed.

Among the volunteer corps organized by the chapter is the motor corps, a group of Marion motorists who have offered to drive charity patients to the hospital for treatment or to give other motor service when needed; the volunteer sewing corps which has made many articles of clothing used by the nurses in their work; the volunteer disaster committee, which would be called into action in case of any serious disaster in this community.

Miss Dowd as child welfare officer of the American Legion, has investigated the cases handled by the local post and has guided the child welfare work by her recommendations.

Crowded Out of the Picture

Congress may do its best and its worst this week without getting much attention The big show will be in Chicago

Many Democratic congressmen will be in attendance all will be there in spirit Including the probability that Republican eyes also will be turned westward and Republican judgment will be busy with Democratic follies and difficulties the Washington forecast is bound to be a dull one

A few days ago a prominent American told an audience that national confusion approaching the stage of panic would be the result if every newspaper in the country were to suspend publication for 48 hours His conception of the service of the press is clear but perhaps there is an opportunity for speculation on another aspect of the supposition

Congress crowded out of the picture this week by the Democratic convention will cause less worry than it has any time since it convened with the possible exception of the few days occupied by the Republican convention Is it wrong to assume that what confusion would exist if the people were to be kept in the dark for a few days would be the result of news from Washington?

Is it wrong to assume that the revenue bill would be just as easy to bear if the people never had heard of it before they started to pay higher taxes? Is it wrong to assume that Americans would be happier if they didn't know that the budget was unbalanced by billions of dollars?

Probably it is Some of them would get along all right but the rest would be sensitively attuned to rumor Fears instead of facts would occupy the public mind and a stampede would be the result Still there is the possibility of a happy minority—a possibility that should attract more than a few people this week while congress is crowded out of the picture by the loud but relatively unimportant deliberations of the Democrats For those who know how to use it an opportunity to make a partial escape from the worries of Washington is available

Over the Line

Information was given out quietly last week that the Prince of Wales heir apparent to the British throne had passed his 38th birthday Nine comments out of 10 no doubt were on the subject of his bachelorhood

It is given to Americans to do what Britishers might like to do but dare not—openly at least On this side of the Atlantic and this side of Canada Albert Edward can be considered lightly—respectfully but as a celebrity instead of a prince

This is all preparatory to stating the suspicion that the Duke of Cornwall (the prince himself) has reached and passed over the line where marriage is still considered the logical end of a prolonged period of hardy singleness In other words from now on it will be surprising if the Prince of Wales does get married If he doesn't that will be entirely natural

Thirty eight is a ticklish age One more birthday and the definitely middle aged period of 40 begins to spread its deep shadows When there can be no more looking forward to another birthday in the 30's even though they be the late ones the marital candidate is over the line Behind his back the whispers and oglings that attend the activities of a young bachelor unaccountably are transformed into the grieved looks that follow an old bachelor It is in effect the difference between live hope and fatigued resignation

Can Ohio Do It?

Can the universal demand of taxpayers for decreased cost of government be answered in Ohio? A committee appointed by the governor and a special senate committee from the general assembly are seeking ways and means preparatory to convening of legislators in special session next September

Graduated pay cuts starting with 5 per cent reductions in $1,000 wages have been suggested The administration's finance director has given assurance that there will be no deficiency this year but that appropriations for 1933 and 1934 will have to be curtailed severely Fortunately Ohio worries less about its own financial affairs than those of the federal government thereby saving itself no small amount of worry

The people do not like the sound of pay cuts but theory long since ceased to be of first importance in considering the means of saving financial balance A balloon crew is forced to discard as ballast articles of direct value when an emergency threatens For better or worse tax spending agencies must forget everything but the necessity of scaling down expenditures to match income There is nothing pleasant about the process, it entails waste and in some cases downright cruelty but it is the only method available in a system of government which never has allowed any careful thought to be given to the morrow Today the fruits of yesterday's mistakes must be reaped Tomorrow there will be another unwanted crop of today's mistakes to handle.

Dr "Jim" McMurray

When death removes from a community a citizen who has been prominent and active in its affairs the question of whether he is to be greatly missed depends largely upon his personality and the role that he [illegible] life

[illegible] he [illegible] characteristics that rank [illegible] as unusual and outstanding Dr James W McMurray [illegible] Jim as [illegible] people knew him was of the type His striking and commanding appearance enhanced as the result of military study and training his gift of keen wit and logic that made him an exceptionally engaging conversationalist and [illegible] always a pleasing companion and his never failing enthusiasm invariably assured him a place of prominence in all enterprises with which he was connected

One meeting with Dr Jim was sufficient to give him a lasting place in a person's memory He was one of the class of men equipped mentally and physically to leave permanent and favorable impressions And because of his ever present good humor meeting him was almost certain to leave those with whom he came in contact in a brighter and more cheerful frame of mind It took an extremely deep seated and chronic case of grouchiness or blues to survive contact with his contagious optimism and pleasantry

Dr McMurray's interest outside his own affairs was not limited to community activities In fact probably his chief interest was centered in the general welfare of state and nation especially from a military standpoint This was not because he gloried in the achievements or conquests of war but because above all he was intensely patriotic He regarded preparedness for military service in an emergency as his personal duty and obligation and from the earliest years of his young manhood equipped himself to be ready for a summons of that kind whenever it came He responded to such calls on several occasions and earned distinction for valuable service to his country

So as a citizen of Marion and as a patriotic American Dr Jim was indeed one who filled an important place and who is certain to be missed in the fields of service that benefitted from his interest and efforts

The Secret of Longevity

Successful office holding in the smaller American republics consists of two important personal accomplishments keeping alive and keeping in office President Machado of Cuba is an excellent example of success

Cubans have lived under martial law since last summer and they must be learning to like it their president has asked authority to continue the revolutionary safeguard for three more years The real mark of his success as a politician lies in the fact that every one expects him to get what he wants There may be disappointment in store for him at some future time but while he is in the saddle he is determined to hold a good seat

The army is loyal The opposition is consequently kept scattered and discouraged There is plenty of discontent but few opportunities to talk about it Of course a fair mind immediately questions the constitutionality of martial law continued over an indefinite period but there is a solution for that too It is reported that a certain lawyer unfriendly to President Machado who wanted to talk about martial law and the constitution is languishing in prison It will be an honor of no mean proportions if Machado can keep himself in office 10 years one can't afford to be particular about methods in such circumstances

This is the land to which Americans sailed not so many years ago in whooping enthusiasm to spread the advantages of new world democracy over as large an area as possible particularly when young Theodore Roosevelt made war attractive with the lean of his extraordinary personality Undoubtedly matters have improved vastly since the discouraged Spaniard wrestled with the problem of a native population reluctant to obey orders from the officials

A VITAL MUST

Silas H Strawn former president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in a recent address urged upon his fellow members of that body five vital musts as the essential aids to economic recovery One of these in particular deeply should be impressed upon the public consciousness and that is that business has to stand the strain of depression

The lack of confidence and courage on the part of the general public the problem of reduction of unemployment our most serious problem the need for economic cooperation these must be considered But we must pay taxes and our debts maintain our credit state municipal and national We must agree that the government in the public interest shall be permitted to exercise [illegible] control [illegible] activities but that control should have a limit No government should be permitted [illegible] functions should not be permitted to invade the domain of the private individual in business As Mr Strawn points out [illegible] and unwarranted supervision unduly hamper individual effort

But a chief fact [illegible] here is that the greater portion of the taxes for the support of government is paid [illegible] They have then said Mr Strawn [illegible] of impressing upon all of [illegible] sentiment [illegible] all of the people [illegible] effort on the part of any [illegible] to obtain an unjust share of [illegible] money from the public treasury violates that fundamental principle —Cincinnati Enquirer

Daily Guide to Health

BY DR. ROYAL S COPELAND

Proper Diet Is Essential

Many criticize the doctors claiming they are negligent about giving proper instructions regarding the diet of the sick In hospital cases the diet is supervised by a trained nurse who readily understands what the doctor means by a light diet or a solid diet But in the home these critics say the doctors should give definite instructions about the diet to be given the patient

The quality and quantity of food which should be prescribed is determined by the activity of the ailing patient If he lies quietly in bed he does not need as much food as when he is about and working Nevertheless the bedridden patient must have nourishment for the body needs energy and heat to aid in the patient's recovery

For those recovering from infectious diseases the diet should be light and simple During the course of the fever most of the foods given are in liquid form As the fever subsides and disappears the amount of nutrition should be increased but this increase should be gradual

A liquid diet does not mean water merely It includes all nourishing foods in the form of fluids Milk is the best foundation for a liquid diet while gruels broths and fruit juices may be added

When the doctor orders a simple diet he has in mind food that is substantial and nourishing but easily digested A simple diet includes milk eggs toast cereals custards and milk puddings To this list vegetables fresh fruits and meats may be added gradually The food should never be forced and it should be served in a tempting and appetizing manner

Tonics are not as popular as they used to be They have been replaced by prescribing certain natural spring waters and carbonated beverages Most patients convalescing from serious ailments and confined to bed develop a tendency toward constipation For this reason stewed fruits and vegetables that have a mild laxative action should be included in the diet

In serious ailments the diet should be personally supervised by a physician and the complications of infectious diseases require unusual attention When the kidneys are involved as in scarlet fever a special diet must be prescribed In diabetes it is impossible to prescribe the diet until there have been careful and repeated estimations of the amount of sugar present in the urine and blood and if diet does not alter the underlying diabetes insulin should be given

Water is an indispensable part of the convalescent's diet that is often neglected Bright's disease is the only disease where the amount of water should be limited Water should be placed beside the bed and the patient encouraged to drink a glass of water every hour Water aids in diluting the poisons accumulated within the body and in the proper digestion of other foods

In disease certainly and usually in health fried and greasy foods should be avoided salts peppers spices and condiments should be used sparingly and excessive amounts of tea coffee and alcoholic beverages should be eliminated Food should be chewed slowly and carefully

Glimpses of the Past

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Wednesday June 28 1922

News reports from Lima stated that property loss in excess of a half million dollars was estimated as the result of a wind hail and rain storm which had reached cyclonic proportions south and west of Lima the night before

At a meeting of President Harding and his cabinet advisors it was decided to hold a conference in Washington the following Saturday morning with leaders of coal miners and coal operators in an effort to iron out difficulties in the mining industry

Miss Cornell Mattern confidential secretary to President Harding was married in Cincinnati to Norman P Sheppard, attache of the insurance bureau for former service men

Mrs William Dowler of South Vine street left for Chicago to attend the wedding of her daughter, Miss Bessie May Dowler to Albert R Gish son of Dr and Mrs Gish of Abilene Kas, on Thursday

Miss Ruth Kern and Herman J Seckel both of Bucyrus were united in marriage at the home of the bridegroom's uncle and aunt Mr and Mrs Louis Wetzel on East Center street by Rev Albert J Koch pastor of Salem Evangelical church

Interest in the weekly picnics sponsored by Marion merchants was reported to be lagging only about 75 attending this week's event A feature of the picnic was a ball game in which the merchants defeated the Y M C A 5-4 The batteries were Burdette Geller and Pfann for the Y M C A and Geissler Fetter and Blocksom for the merchants

Presidential Electors

The electors selected by the voters of Ohio in November to cast the vote of the state for president and vice president will be the thirty third such college to meet in Ohio The story of these election agencies covers a period running from 1804—that was the first presidential election in which Ohio took part In all this time the Ohio electoral college was never divided but once

A state might select its presidential electors in such a way that a division of the college would not be possible The federal constitution merely says that each state shall select a number of electors equal to the number of representatives and senators it has in congress in such manner as the legislature thereof may direct It was in 1892 that the Ohio electoral vote was divided McKinley was yet governor Benjamin Harrison was running for reelection against Grover Cleveland The Harrison administration had proved rather unpopular and the election here was rather close On secretary of state the head of the Republican state ticket that year S M Taylor Republican had less than a thousand plurality over W A Taylor Democrat and the vote on the electoral ticket was so close that James P Seward the high man on the Democratic ticket nosed out the low man on the Republican ticket so that Ohio cast one electoral vote for Grover Cleveland Seward a Mansfield man after ward served in the legislature As the result of the election Mr Seward long carried the distinction of being the only Democrat elected in Ohio since the Civil war but when because of the Republican split in 1912 the state elected a solid Democratic college for Woodrow Wilson that distinction was lost

The first Ohio electoral college that of 1804 consisted of but three members—William Goforth James Pritchard and Nathaniel Massie and it cast its three votes for Thomas Jefferson.

After numerous sabbatical years I journeyed to the Polo Grounds the other day to see a professional baseball game My chief reaction was the surprising youth of the players I never realized before what mere boys they are My enthusiasm too had jelled After a few innings I found myself building words out of the sign board letters and departed before the last ball was pitched I can understand why McGraw quit

Also I am one of the bewildered antiquarians constantly wincing at the illegitimatizing of the tender terms for wife sweetheart and parent Such similes as red hot mama sugar daddy frail skirt headache ball and chain and the like Once too hostess was a term for gentle ladies who gave afternoons on the lower [illegible] Today it is a symbol [illegible] of the dance halls [illegible] joints

The Marry-Go-Round

BY HELEN ROWLAND

CO-ED MARRIAGES

Warfare and transportation are not the only things that have been completely revolutionized in the last decade There is marriage

The marriage of today is as different from the old Victorian marriage as Amelia Earhart's trans-Atlantic flight from the voyage of Christopher Columbus

It starts off right at the altar at a different pace and in a brand new tempo Sometimes it is harder to recognize than your grandmother in her beach pajamas and her platinum bob

When a man went to the altar in the good old days it was for love in nine cases out of ten Or for what he thought was love Love was all a woman had to offer him —there wasn't any more

But the mid Victorian woman married for love and——? For love—and a home Love—and convenience Love—and social position And sometimes just for love and an escape An escape from a job or from spinsterhood or from poverty And her parents saw to it that she got the [illegible] and whether she was short changed on the love or not

But now how things have been reversed

It is the women who are marrying for love alone—because at last they can afford to And the men who are marrying for love and [illegible] for love and a working partner For love and ambition For love—and convenience Or luxury Or prestige

Marriage is no longer a [illegible] on [illegible] side and a charity [illegible] tion or an autocracy on the other It is a cooperative affair a fifty fifty partnership and its keynote is reciprocity

Now that women are getting into the limelight sharing the [illegible] and the responsibilities and holding down highly paid jobs the average woman has a great deal more to offer a man than just love and coddling and homecooking And the average man is gradually being sold on the quid pro quo marriage

Of course there still are lots of good old fashioned marriages There always will be There always will be hosts of men who want an old fashioned home with a wife-mother sweetheart and cook in it And there always will be thousands of women to whom the one and only desirable career on earth is that of being some man's rib and the mother of his children The old fashioned marriage always will be the most popular because God made men and women that way

But the new Co-ed marriage which is a business partnership as well as a love-partnership is beginning to be recognized as a genuine success and not the joke we once thought it Marrying for love and— may not be so idealistic But it makes marriage less of a venture for a man and less of an alternative for a woman And less of a lottery for both of them

MAN HELD IN RELIEF FIGHT

Seymour Charged with Attempting To Take Over Commissioner's Office

W Seymour 29 of 701 North Main street was being held by the police today for a hearing before Municipal Judge W R Marion on a disorderly conduct charge brought by F O Tuttle assistant relief commissioner

The charges grew out of what Tuttle said was an attempt on the part of Seymour and several others to take possession of the relief commissioner's office Saturday morning

According to Tuttle Seymour with several companions took up a complaint of a woman living on the West side that she had been refused grocery orders by Relief Commissioner C M Tobin and entering the relief office in the city hall Saturday morning locked the door and demanded that the woman be given an order for groceries

When their demands were ignored the men became abusive and it was necessary to call police to have them removed from the office. An affidavit for Seymour's arrest was filed by Tuttle Saturday afternoon and he was arrested yesterday afternoon

Seymour and his companions with the woman who claimed she had been denied a grocery order first appeared in the office of City Clerk S H Keller Saturday morning where they demanded from Relief Commissioner Tobin an order for the woman. Tobin said the woman had been denied an order because of objectionable conditions under which she was living. He also said that when these conditions were remedied she would be given orders by the relief department. This explanation however failed to pacify the group who then visited the commissioner's office with the demand for an order

Gambler's Throw

… of a marriage as though they were discussing a missing engine in a gas … [illegible]

[illegible] "I'm laughing out of pure enthusiasm," Emory. [illegible]

"Sure, I heard it," Emory's grin was [illegible].

"Didn't you hear me say that the marriage would be in name only?"

"Sure, [illegible] heard it, didn't we, Steve?"

The detective's eyes were twinkling, but his face was [illegible].

"Well, then, don't be an ass," muttered Jerry.

"I heard you say it," grinned Emory. "But it doesn't mean anything. Not with—"

[illegible]

He rose and strode toward the house, very much on his dignity. The majestic [illegible] of his retreat was not made easier by the sound of Emory's raucous laughter which followed him all the way to the porch steps.

An almost unbearable aura of uneasiness pervaded everything within the house. Blended with the heat waves that rose in shimmering layers from the parched sand outside, made an atmosphere surcharged with electricity. Jerry felt that if a door were to be slammed, each man within that hot, darkened living room would leap for his neighbor's throat.

Nancy was the only one who, after dinner that evening, braved the torrid heat of her own room. The others in the living room had settled down to wait as patiently as might be through endless hours until bedtime.

Jerry, Emory and Stevens sat close together, the fliers attempting to read, the old man mildly watching the others with eyes that scarcely seemed to see what they were looking at. Hamilton was placidly shuffling his cards and placing them in neat rows and columns upon the green baize table top. Mallory, a highball on the arm of his chair, was alternately drinking and dozing. Lucci, sitting bolt upright in a straight chair, was finding the inactivity almost insupportable. He strode to the door with irritating regularity, peering out to see if the hoped-for evening breeze had risen. Then he returned to the chair to sit, chafing and sweating, waiting for something to happen. Martin, unobtrusive as usual, was half-hidden in a dark corner. He shuffled his feet incessantly, unconsciously. Jerry found the noise irritating. Even Ashwood, stretched out in a chaise lounge of Philippine wicker, seemed moody and dispirited.

"Good God!" snarled Mallory harshly. "Why doesn't somebody say something?"

Lucci snapped out of his chair and faced him, his dark eyes beady with hate, his mouth a crimson crack in his swarthy face. Then he began to advance upon the stockbroker, treading lightly, swiftly. Mallory pushed himself out of his arm chair, grinning horribly. Hamilton swiftly moved his table away from the area of the impending clash.

"Lucci!" Steven's voice snapped like a bullet. Lucci paused uncertainly. "Sit down, both of you!"

The tension was suddenly broken. The gangster, surly, returned to his chair. Mallory seated himself and drank greedily.

Ashwood had not moved a muscle. He sat there, watching, an amused gleam in his deep-set eyes, a faint smile on his lips.

"Thoughtful of you, Steve," the white-haired cripple acknowledged drily, "to break up that little bout, but you must admit that it would have livened up the evening."

"Uh, huh," grunted the other shortly. "But at my age, killing isn't funny. Sometimes it's necessary, but it's not funny."

"Oh, I don't know," yawned Ashwood. "Once in a while it may be amusing, either in its cause or effect." He looked about the room, eyeing each of the men speculatively. "I doubt, however, that it amused any of us last night. Without wishing to seem critical, I might remind you gentlemen that one of you has committed two rather cold-blooded murders."

Stevens watched Jerry who, with a faraway expression on his tanned face was listening to something which was apparently inaudible to the others. Emory, too, heard it.

"An airplane," he whispered.

THEIR LIFE A BOWL OF ROSES

Winning seems to be a habit with these girls, but despite the regularity with which they bring home the bacon they still get a big thrill out of victory. They are Mrs. Helen Wills Moody (left) and Miss Sarah Palfrey, members of the American women's tennis team, shown with the Wightman cup they helped win for Uncle Sam at Wimbledon, Eng., recently. An admirer has filled the trophy with roses in a pretty tribute to the conquerors.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Description Given in Marion's Code Message May Enable Dicky in His Airplane To Identify the Kidnapers' Retreat.

Lillian tapped thoughtfully upon Marion's code book with her pencil when I asked her if the letter her young daughter had sent by the hands of the kidnapers contained information as to the secret prison of the girls.

"I can't go as far as that," she said. "She evidently has had difficulty in finding code words for some of the things she wishes to tell me, and that's what's tearing me into bits. It has been so long since she wrote that book! How could she have remembered it correctly? And if she made mistakes it would be—well their very lives might depend upon a single mistaken meaning."

"I don't believe it has been so long since she has seen that book," I told her.

"What do you mean?" she demanded, wide-eyed.

Her Refreshed Memory

"Do you remember how much time she and Carolyn spent rummaging in the attic on that last visit?"

"Yes," excitedly, "they were up there almost all of one rainy day, and Marion asked permission to open some of our 'personal' boxes; said she wanted to show Carolyn some of the playthings she had when a youngster."

"There you are!" I said triumphantly. "Both Marion and Carolyn revel in that sort of thing, you know. They made a study of that code book, and Marion 'refreshed her memory' as the attorneys say."

"I wonder," Lillian said slowly, "if they made a copy of it."

"That's easily found out," I told her. "Of course they didn't carry it around with them on ordinary errands. If they made a copy it's hidden securely and ingeniously in their room. Mrs. Barnes will make a thorough search of the room if you ask it, and I'd bank on the sagacity of that lady. If it's in the room she'll find it. She hasn't been head mistress here all these years for puddings."

"By all means ask her the first chance you have," she said. "Just now, I'll go on with what I think Marion is trying to tell me. Then if Mrs. Barnes does find a copy of this"—she touched the little black book tenderly—"I shall be reasonably sure that the description of their prison is fairly correct."

She turned back to her notes and looked them over.

"The word 'First' means 'above ground,' and the capital letter beginning it means 'house' instead of apartment building. The letter 'r' shaded more heavily than the others means 'locked in a room,' and if the 'i' is not dotted and the 't' not crossed, either or both—that means 'upstairs room.'

"'Gentleman' used instead of 'man' means 'can see out of window'; 'lady' instead of 'woman' means 'keeping constant watch.'

"'To' used wrongly means 'can see lake,' and with the 't' heavier 'in mountains.' Followed by 'too' it means 'big trees' and the number of letters between the words 'to' and 'too' means the number of big trees, near or surrounding the lake."

I calculated swiftly, and spoke at the same instant she did, "Six."

"Yes," Lillian nodded, "but now comes the puzzling thing. "The middle letter 'o' in 'too' is heavily shaded, and that means 'one of trees different,' but I can't find anything else that describes it. I don't know whether it means a different kind of tree or that its appearance is different."

Dicky Gets the Meaning

"There's a reference to it farther on. [illegible] other thing. The expression [illegible] 'islands of light.' [illegible]

A sudden thought flashed through my mind.

"Might 'islands of light' perhaps mean 'tree struck by lightning'?" I asked, excitedly.

She stared at me for the fraction of a second, then struck her hand upon her knee.

"I believe you have it," she said. "There is no word in the book meaning that, although why she didn't think of it [illegible] goodness knows. It couldn't be [illegible] time she composed it she was a [illegible]."

Dicky May Have Seen It

"[illegible]," I said, [illegible] may believe that they are looking at a room on the second floor of a house large or small. She didn't say, did she?"

"Let me look," Lillian said quickly. "Yes, I overlooked that. If the 'h' in 'three' is unusually small and goes a little below the line it means 'small house.'"

"Then it means that Dicky would [illegible] a [illegible] say long-ended, wait and [illegible] they can see a mountain lake with six large trees near it, one of which has been struck by lightning. That ought to narrow down our search. Why, Dicky may have seen that very place today."

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, June [illegible]

The lunar configurations operating on the affairs of this day are of rather minor consequence, especially as pertaining to business and routine matters. Although there is a sign read as favorable in money and there may be a minor change or journey of advantage. The attention seems to be centered on social, domestic or romantic activities, especially the latter, which holds promise of courtship or marriage, with much happiness marking events.
